Encouraged by Rollback of Tuition Hike for Summer 2015 Term

Students continue to call on Governor Brown and UC President Napolitano for true student engagement, to cancel tuition increases and provide a higher level of state funding for the UC

OAKLAND CA – The University of California says it will not raise tuition for the upcoming summer session, in an acknowledgement of continuing negotiations between Governor Brown and President Napolitano.

Jefferson Kuoch-Seng, University of California Student Association (UCSA) President responded to the walkback of summer fees, saying, “Students are encouraged by this gesture, but it is only a first step. While this is a sign that meaningful negotiations are continuing, it will have an impact on a small segment of the student population. Unfortunately, tuition increases remain scheduled in the fall for incoming freshman and current students.”

Continued Kuoch-Seng, “We are disappointed that once again, students were not engaged directly, and informed of the tuition rollback through the media. UCSA continues to urge the Governor and the President to invite students to the table and stop relegating them to the role of observers to their own future.”
